Amit Stavinsky is the Managing Director, and the Lead Advisor of the wealth management firm Tamar Securities, LLC and a registered representative with Purshe Kaplan Sterling. Amit has been an investment professional in the U.S. since 1991. From 1996 to 2010, Amit served as an Executive Director of Investments and an Omega Portfolio Manager with Oppenheimer & Co., Inc. Subsequently, he founded the Israeli Economic Monthly Review, a financial publication with a circulation of 20,000 that targeted institutional and high net worth readers. He sold this publication after moving to the U.S.

Amit describes himself as a top-down value investor who seeks to identify domestic and global companies in undervalued sectors which he refers to as "Super Cycles" that sell at deep discounts to both their respective and historical intrinsic values. Amit defines "Super Cycles" as undervalued sectors in the global economy that he believes are best positioned for "Long Term Growth".

Amit graduated magna cum laude in Finance from Woodbury University.
